Examples include personal or immediate family illness (medical, psychological), legal, employment changes, death of an immediate family member, academic factors, etc.

- Healthcare provider statements, proof of illness/injury, accident reports, death certificate, obituary, legal notices, proof of employment-related issues (e.g., letter from employer, pay stubs showing changes in hours), letters from community/religious leaders who know your situation.
- Letters that are submitted as documentation should be official, on letterhead/stationery, and have a signature.
- Document dates should match the time period described in your personal statement.

The results of the initial appeal and the subsequent compliance review(s) must be reported to the Office of Financial Aid so that students whose appeals have been approved and who are successfully meeting the conditions of their academic plan may continue to receive assistance.

Students who are found not to be in compliance with their academic plan after the initial probationary semester will be placed once again on financial aid suspension. These students may submit a new appeal form with an updated academic plan after semester grades are posted. This new appeal would have to be resubmitted to and approved by the Committee on Academic Standing in order for aid eligibility for the subsequent semester(s) to be restored.
