Job Title: Anatomy & Physiology Instructor

Closing Date: Open until filled

Job Category: Instructor

Location: City University of New York

City/Cities: New York, NY

Position Type: Contract

Salary: Commensurate with Qualifications

Job Description:
- Able to teach a class size of 15
- Able to teach a diverse group of students with various different educational backgrounds and work experiences.
- Prepare lessons plans with clear learning objectives that meet industry standards
- Ability to incorporate various instructional tools in teaching delivery that will meet different learning styles.
- Conduct classes lessons via use of lectures, videos, hands outs, open resources, PowerPoint, assignments, use of scenarios and simulation software, etc.
- Able to teach an adult population ranging from young adult to older adult population
- Prepare students with understanding of the human body and its function to successfully transition into the Clinical component of Allied Health Training ie. Medical Assisting.
- Develop and maintain a professional relationship with learners
- Maintain records on student performance able to assess student’s outcomes

Responsibilities:
- Teach anatomy & physiology (body structures) and explain how body functions
- Able to assess students understanding of human body and its function using written exams and hands on skills exams
- Maintain accurate records as it relates to attendance and rest grades
- Submit weekly attendance and test outcomes to program manager

Desired Competencies:

Qualifications:
- Bachelor’s Degree or higher
- Minimum - Allied Health Professional degree (i.e. Medics, Nursing, or higher)
- 2+ years teaching adult population
- Sound knowledge, understanding of A & P with the ability to teach and conduct assessment measurements to determine student competency
- Knowledge of creating power points presentation
- Experience teaching virtual classes
Requirements:
- Ability to teach both In-person and Hybrid classes
- Ability to teach at BMCC’s Uptown CUNY in The Heights W 213th Location

How to Apply:

To be considered for this position candidates should email their resume and cover letter to ace@bmcc.cuny.edu by 03/03/2022.